I am afraid there is not a lot out there which is publically available regarding the Judicial Conference Committees. However, I did find this which includes the jurisdiction statements for all of the Committees (on uscourts.gov which is public). Unfortunately, I cannot find a more recent one. This is from '09 and I know that our jurisdiction has changed since then. You could request an updated version from the Office of Public Affairs (not sure if they would give it, but would be one way to try).

Hope this helps some.

Hi Joel.

I am going to ask our Division Chief, Pam Hamrin to see if she can assign someone in her Legal Policy Division to send you the public sources for the Judicial Conference Committees. There was an article that came out recently about the appointments which I will also send to you.

I am copying Pam on this email.

Thanks,
Cait

Hi Cait,

I hope you're doing well.

I'm trying to find descriptions of some of the key JCUS committees. Do you know of a publically accessible sources with that information? I've only been able to find this short description of the process of appointments. <http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Committees.aspx>

Many thanks,

Joel
